

One-Time Consultation Terms and Booking Consent

McBride Restaurant Consulting LLC

Version 3.1

1. Paid One-Time Consultation

McBride Restaurant Consulting LLC ("McBride") provides one twenty-to-thirty-minute consultation for $64.99 to discuss the restaurant's general needs, explain available services, and determine whether a formal engagement may fit. The full $64.99 fee is due before the appointment is confirmed.

2. No Audit or Deliverable

The consultation is an introductory fit call only. It does not include an operational audit, financial analysis, written recommendations, custom deliverables, implementation work, ongoing support, legal or human-resources advice, or a promise that McBride will accept the engagement.

3. Formal Engagement Requires Separate Agreement

Paid consulting begins only after McBride and the client accept a client-specific Statement of Work incorporating the Consulting Services Agreement and, for a fixed-period plan, the Recurring 28-Day Payment Authorization and Prorated Refund Addendum. The Statement of Work will define scope, deliverables, schedule, fees, service location, travel, and any exclusions.

4. Scheduling, Rescheduling, and Attendance

The requested appointment is not confirmed until payment succeeds and McBride confirms availability. With at least twenty-four hours' notice, the customer may reschedule once without charge or cancel for a full refund. A cancellation with less than twenty-four hours' notice, a no-show, or arrival more than ten minutes late is nonrefundable except where required by law or where McBride agrees otherwise. If McBride cancels and cannot reasonably reschedule, McBride will refund the consultation fee.

5. Information and Confidentiality

The customer should share only the information reasonably necessary to describe the restaurant's needs and should not provide passwords, payment-card data, Social Security numbers, medical records, or unnecessary employee personal information. McBride will use reasonable care with nonpublic information, but an introductory consultation is not legally privileged.

6. No Guarantee and Client Responsibility

McBride does not guarantee that a paid engagement will be offered or that any discussion will produce revenue, profit, labor savings, food-cost savings, staffing results, or another outcome. The customer remains responsible for all restaurant, employment, financial, safety, legal, and operational decisions.

7. Payment Authorization and Electronic Record

Typing a legal name, checking the acceptance box, and completing PayPal checkout constitutes an electronic signature and authorization for the disclosed $64.99 charge. The stored record may include the customer's legal name, email, business, service of interest, booking details, terms title and the version identified at checkout, full terms snapshot or archived terms file, timestamp, acceptance identifier, PayPal transaction identifier and status, and limited technical information. McBride retains the record according to its Privacy Policy and business-record retention practices.

8. Governing Law

Washington law governs these terms. The parties will first attempt in good faith to resolve a concern by written notice and direct discussion. Any court proceeding must be brought in an eligible small-claims court or a state or federal court located in King County, Washington.
